

Kano Emir Returns From London After Terror Attack - Naija Pundit

Written by Alaba Johnson

Wednesday, 27 February 2013 19:43 - Last Updated Thursday, 28 February 2013 12:02

Kano Emir Returns From London After Terror Attack

KANO – The Emir of Kano, Alhaji Ado Bayero, Wednesday evening returned to the ancient city of Kano aboard a Presidential jet.

The Air force Jet touched down at the Malam Aminu Kano International Airport at about 6.50pm into the waiting hands of a crowd that consisted of Government functionaries, traditional title holders, businessmen and artisans.

Ado Bayero looking hale and healthy, acknowledged greetings from well wishers at the presidential wing of the airport before he and his two sons were conveyed, amid tight security, to his palace while the crowd chanted Allahu Akbar (God is Great) .

The emir was flown abroad for medical treatment along with his sons, Sanusi Ado Bayero and Aminu Ado Bayero , January 21st, 2013, following an unprovoked attack on his convoy, where his driver and three royal guards were killed.

Commenting on his return, Action Congress of Nigeria chieftain, Alhaji Bashir Gentile told Vanguard that “Kano is happy for his return and we shall remain committed in our prayers for Allah’s mercy”

He said that “you can see it yourself, the emir is hale and hearty and we remain garteful to Allah”.